Hampstead Heath walking tour celebrating the 150th anniversary of the Hampstead Heath Act. It launches the new exhibition on the heath and explores with attendees 'Caring for Built Heritage and Open Spaces' as part of the London Festival of Architecture.

The Feast of the Poets online event at Keats House is part of the 200th anniversary celebrations of Keats and discusses the role of place in creative thought and what makes a totally creative and inspiring space.

Where are you most at home: a poet's drawing room, swimming in a pond, stately home's gallery, at outdoor concerts, striding over open space or under glades of trees? Hampstead Heath is special to many people and has all of these. Importantly, they are all managed spaces.

Where architecture is described as the poetic use of light and space, the walking tour looks at the reciprocal nature of figure and ground, how we have defined, enclosed, curated or managed 'nature'. Highlights include the relationship to one of our greatest sensory poets, Keats, who lived nearby.

With urban densification as policy, wellbeing and the environment emphasized against Covid and climate change, the significance of our open spaces are being redefined culturally. What does this mean for the future of our open spaces?
